

Fables in Slang

George Ade

Read by Gregg Margarite

LibriVox

LibriVox

Fables in Slang

by George Ade (1866 – 1944)

While a columnist for The Chicago Record humorist George Ade penned numerous “fables” which were subsequently collected into books. Fables in Slang is the first of these collections. It contains 26 satirical stories that lampoon phrenologists, idealists, snobs, fanatics and other ignorant fools of the day, most of which still wander through our modern lives. Jean Shepherd considered Ade a predecessor who made writers like James Thurber, Mike Royko, and himself possible. Fables in Slang was first published in 1899 by Herbert S. Stone and Company.

This project has 2 files and a total running time of 1:43:19.

Read by Gregg Margarite

Dedicated Proof-Listener: Betty M.

Meta-Coordinator/Cataloging: Gregg Margarite

Drawings from the original publication by Clyde J. Newman

Cover design: Bart de Leeuw

For more information or to volunteer, please visit librivox.org.
All LibriVox productions are in the Public Domain.